Highlands mosquitoes pose little threat to humans as West Nile carriers

KENNETH JACKSON
Staff Reporter

Last week, tests confirmed that a dead crow found in Haliburton tested positive for the West Nile virus.

"The finding shouldn't be a surprise. I've been saying all along we can expect to see West Nile virus showing up in birds in our area this summer," says Dr. Alex Hukowich, Medical Officer of Health with the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit. "It's really everywhere in Southern Ontario."

Hukowich says the chances of an outbreak of the disease among humans in the Highlands is next to none because we are too rural and we don't have the breed of mosquitoes that spread the disease from birds to humans.

"The mosquitoes that bite birds usually only go after birds, and if there are no birds around, then maybe they might choose people instead," he says. "But what are the chances of there being no birds around?"

According to Hukowich the chances could be around 10 per cent.

In parts of the United States which reported some type of West Nile virus activity, he notes, 90 per cent of the areas did not see any human cases. However, he says, the United States has different climates and different breeds of mosquitoes so it's hard to compare.

New life for old facility?

Dysart considers turning former sewage treatment plant into a holding depot

SHERYL LOUCKS
Staff Reporter

Dysart's old sewage treatment plant in Haliburton is facing the end of the road for life expectancy but it may see a resurrection as a septage holding facility.

Bill DeAngelis, American Water Services Canada director, informed Dysart et al councilors recently that he has reviewed the certificate of approval for the old plant.

"I don't know if it should figure into the overall capacity of the (sewage) system," he said. "It may be more valuable to expand the new plant (when needed) rather than invest in the old plant."

DeAngelis explained that his staff examined the old plant and found a lot of corrosion in the pipes and the shell. The old plant was built in 1972 and DeAngelis said that in his experience these types of facilities only have a life span of approximately 30 years.

The idea was floated about whether the old plant could be used as a septage holding facility. The idea would be to use the tanks in the old plant to store septage while keeping it aerated with bubbles going through and then pumping it to the new plant for treatment. This would benefit the municipality by helping to maintain flows of sewage to the new plant at an ideal level.

If sewage flows become too

What a fantastic evening in Wilberforce again!! PENNIES POURED into our 6th Annual PENNY RAFFLE.

What a fabulous evening and great to hear the enjoyment from new Penny Raffle enthusiasts every year. The fundraising was positively successful. Another community effort to be proud of. No endeavour of this magnitude, and this much fun could be possible without community support and willing workers. Thank you to the businesses, organizations and individuals that donated prizes (201 to be exact plus 3 door prizes). The assortment of items, services and gift certificates was fantastic ... and the exhibitor tables ... offering information and merchandise were a welcome addition to the evening. Thank you to all the helpers: ticket sellers, raffle assistants, clowns, popcorn poppers, the gang who set up the kids games and the gang who ran the kids games. Additional thanks to the sluggers and luggers who helped with set up and clean up. Thank you to the Wilberforce Roller Skating Club for giving up the arena for the evening and providing the sound system. Thank you to Rick and Lynn Huffman for the loan of their popcorn popper. A special thank you to Roberta Walsh for solving our bucket problem. Thank you to all the people who poured into the arena to participate in our Penny Raffle. Together we raised over a whopping $3,000 towards community improvements. We hope you had as great a time as we did. Hope to see you again next August, eh!!!

Essential Haliburton is now everyone's to read

Michael Barnes launches his new book on the Highlands

MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

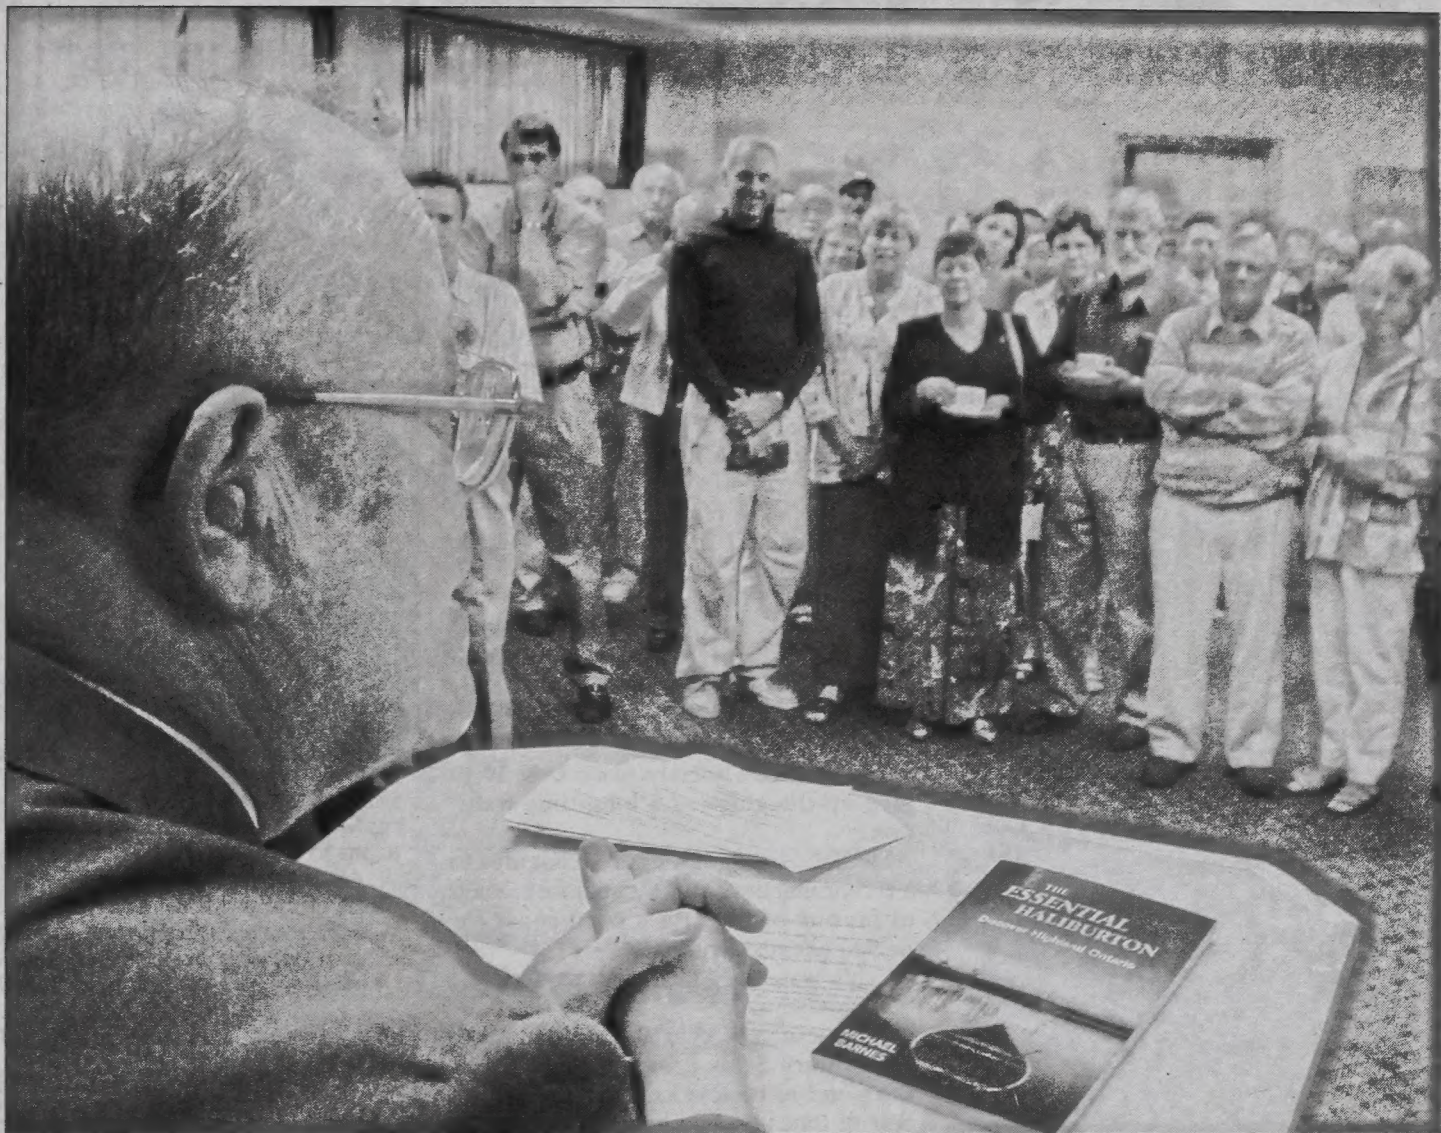

After Michael Barnes had finished thanking everyone who had made the publication of his new book on Haliburton possible, it was his turn to be thanked for writing a book that lets the rest of the world know why this is such a special place.

"Michael is a generous man and he's done something very good for the county with the writing of this book," said Lorne Heise, the man to whom The Essential Haliburton - Discover Highland Ontario is dedicated.

"It's a neat read," said Heise, whose own business, Heat-Line, is one of the businesses highlighted in the new book.

Although Barnes has written more than 40 books, Thursday night's launch of The Essential Haliburton was only the third time a book has had such a public welcome. The room at the Delta Pine-stone was crowded with wellwishers,

MARTHA PERKINS/Echo

On Thursday night at the Delta Pinestone, author Michael Barnes welcomed dozens of wellwishers to the launch of his new book, The Essential Haliburton - Discover Highland Ontario. It's designed to appeal to newcomers and visitors as a way of promoting the area's many attributes.

including many whose businesses or work is mentioned in the book.

"I have a great facility for meeting very nice people and most of them are in this book," says Barnes.

After an extensive writing career, which earned him the Order of Canada, in Northern Ontario, Barnes moved to Haliburton three years ago with his wife. Copies of Chris Bishop's pictorial look at the Highlands were running out, and he felt there was the need for a book which promotes the natural beauty and attributes of the area.

At first he wanted to do a coffee table book but the publishing industry went into a bit of a slump, so he settled on the smaller book which still manages to contain many historic and scenic shots.

There's no government money tied up in the publication of the book, Barnes pointed out with satisfaction. "It's entirely private enterprise."

Private enterprise is what makes this county thrive. Barnes noted that only 1.5% of the county's economy is based on industry. That leaves tourism as a major economic engine, and this book will give it a bit more fuel.

The Essential Haliburton is aimed at newcomers and visitors as a way of promoting the Highlands as a place to live and vacation. As well as having widespread availability throughout the Highlands, it will be on sale at Coles, Indigo and Chapters outlets.

Alcohol sales give big boost to local agency stores

Shoppers give new LCBO outlets enthusiastic welcome

KENNETH JACKSON
Staff Reporter

The selling beer, wine and spirits in your local grocery store turned out to be a good idea.

At least that is what the owners of West Guilford Shopping Centre and Eagle Lake Food Town are saying.

Both say selling alcohol as an LCBO outlet store increased their business.

"Sales were good and that was the ideal of bringing in the LCBO," said Bill Burden, owner of the West Guilford Shopping Centre. "Not just sales for the alcohol but sales were up from last year for everything else in the store."

Allan Bagg, owner of Eagle Lake Food Town, said sales were up throughout his store also.

Both owners said no one was really negative about the outlet.

"No complaints. I'd say 99.9 per cent of the people that came in were happy," said Baggs.

The West Guilford Shopping Centre did so well that they had to bring in more staff.

"I had to hire three more people to work in the store," said Burden. "That is good for the community."

The two stores first learned of their chances of having an LCBO outlet store in October 2001 when Consumer and Business Services Minister Norm Sterling unveiled 35 proposed communities to host new "LCBO agency stores."

Sterling said at the Ontario government's request the Crown-owned LCBO was expanding the LCBO agency system as part of an effort to improve customer service in under-served rural communities and tourist areas.

"The LCBO's experience with agency stores has proven that the model can be a safe, reliable and cost-effective way to deliver service to remote or rural communities," said Chris Layton, spokesperson for the LCBO.

There are presently over 100 agency stores across Ontario, with 80 more in the works.

Members of the Bagg family - Nancy Elstone, Kirby, Ellenore and Allan - also saw positive spinoffs at their store, Eagle Lake Food town.

Corn replaces rhubarb as reason for Eagle Lake to have a party

ALLISON TAYLOR

Staff Reporter

Butter, a sprinkling of salt and even a dash of ground pepper, are all necessary elements in preparing the quintessential cob of corn. Just ask the people who live in Eagle Lake.

As residents stood in groups around a large pot of boiling water last Wednesday night, salivating at the chance encounter with one of six dozen cobs of corn, the first ever community corn roast was off to a rolling boil.

"We've had a fantastic turn-out," said Donna Medland, a member of the Eagle Lake Women's Society.

Medland and several other members of the women's society had key roles in bringing the corn roast to a boil in an effort to elevate community spirit after the traditional Rhubarb Festival was cancelled this year.

The women's society wasn't ready to give up the ghost of a long-time tradition.

Medland brought the corn roast idea to a recent meeting, and the majority voted in favour of hosting a corn roast for Eagle Lake residents.

"This was truly a community effort," Medland says.

Pat Burke, a teacher at Archie Stouffer Elementary School, braved the heat of the water to remove cobs of corn with a pair of tongs, while long-time residents such as Marie Wallace and Ruth Still were waiting with a tray to put them on.

"Everyone in the community played a role in getting this off the ground," Medland said. She estimated that around 80 people made the trek to the public beach, carrying lawn chairs and enthusiastic children to the party. A few members of the Silver Flutes were also on hand to serenade the partygoers.

Some people used the typewriter method to eat their cob of corn from side to side, while others preferred the more conventional approach and rolled it in circles.

However they chose to eat their corn, the entire group was smiling and ready for a good, end-of-the summer get-together.

Happy's unhappy

Snow White devastated by theft of Doc the dwarf from Green Lake

CATHY OLLIFFE

Staff Reporter

It'll take more than a kiss from a handsome prince to wake Snow White from this nightmare.

Life for Snow has been just plain miserable since somebody kidnapped one of her dwarf pals, Doc, from his honoured spot on Roy Scott's Green Lake lawn.

Snow White isn't the only one peeved about Doc's disappearance. Sleepy has insomnia.

Grumpy is beyond grumpy - he's just plain furious. Even poor Happy can't find it in his heart to smile. The only dwarf who isn't upset is Dopey, only because he hasn't figured out that Doc is gone yet.

But the angriest one of all is Roy Scott. His property near the old restaurant in West Guilford has been home to these Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs lawn ornaments for more than 15 years. They've become a sort of fairy tale institution in the neighbourhood and countless people have taken their kids to see Scott's unique display.

"Hundreds of pictures have been taken," he says.

Unfortunately more than just pictures were taken last Wednesday. Somebody took Doc.

It couldn't have been easy smuggling Doc because he was no featherweight. Scott figures he weighed between 90 and 100 pounds and was about a metre tall.

And it won't just be a matter of running out to the dwarf store to buy another Doc. "You can't replace them now," Scott says.

He's so upset by the theft of Doc that he is appealing to the thief to return Doc to his dwarf family, no questions asked. He's even offering an award.

So, to the thief who broke Happy's heart we say, "What's up with Doc?" Bring him home where he belongs so future generations of children can enjoy Snow White and all seven of her little friends.

All that's left of Doc is this handful of rubble from his base that Roy Scott holds up outside his home on Green Lake. He's offering a reward for the return of the seventh dwarf who, along with Snow White and the others, is a popular attraction for photographers.

It's back to the drawing board for closure of Glamorgan landfill

KERRY RILEY
Special to The Echo

The following are brief reports from the August meeting of Algonquin Highlands council.

Environment Operations Supervisor Glen Couvert indicated to council that, as a result of a six-month delay at the Ministry of the Environment in processing Glamorgan's landfill closure plan (blamed on a staff change), he had recently been informed that the plan was now out of date and needed to be revised.

The new staff member had strongly advised that the municipality use a consultant. A resolution to seek the services of C.C. Tatham and Associates to update the landfill closure plan and provide the information requested by the MOE, passed.

The single bid from Whitfield Plumbing, received in response to a call for tender for work on the Dyno water system, in the amount of approximately $70,000 was not accepted by council. It was agreed that, with the municipality acting as general contractor, it might prove cheaper to subcontract the work themselves and that this possibility should be investigated.

Couvert reported that the recent Hazardous Waste Disposal Day had been reasonably successful, with about 70 residents participating. All agreed that it should be repeated next year.

Recreation

Cardiff Councillor Suzanne Partridge announced that Bierworth Concrete had agreed to donate the concrete needed to pour the basketball court at the Harcourt Community Centre and that work was set to proceed.

A resolution passed, accepting a quote from Northern Fire Equipment in the amount of $2,572.00, to install emergency lighting in the Wilberforce arena.

Building permit fee

It was generally agreed that the present building permit fee by-law must be redrafted for clarity because, as it stands, not even the staff can decipher it.

Dysart questions whether it can afford province's offer of one-third funding for new bus

SHERYL LOUCKS
Staff Reporter

The provincial government is offering 65 municipalities, including Dysart et al, a total of $100 million to update their municipal transit bus fleets.

But how useful that money actually is was debated at a recent council meeting.

Dysart is eligible this year for up to $6,660 to replace or refurbish its DYMO, or Dysart Mobility, bus used for the transportation of the disabled. There is no funding being offered to assist in the operational costs of the bus.

Tammy McKelvey, Dysart chief administrative officer, explained to council that the money is part of the Ontario government's promise to strengthen the public transit system.

Last September, Mike Harris, then premier, announced a 10-year plan dedicating $9 billion to improve transit systems in an effort to take traffic pressures off the environment.

There's a catch. Dysart is eligible for one third of the total cost of the refurbishment or a new bus.

Reeve Murray Fearrey questioned whether or not it would be worth spending $90,000 on a new bus just to get $30,000 from the province.

"The bus is a really important feature that we have," said Councillor Jerry Walker.

Councillors debated the advantages and disadvantages of refurbishing, buying a used bus and purchasing a new vehicle.

McKelvey said the government is saying it is willing to stockpile the funding for the next three years so long as Dysart makes clear its intention to spend money on the bus - subject to the criteria not changing in the interim.

In the end, council passed a motion saying they would attempt to purchase a new bus in 2005.

Fearrey says that gives them some insurance for a portion of funding and they can make decisions about the particulars and what their needs are at a later date.

Risk to humans very low

The West Nile virus arrived in North America in 1999 and has been detected in Eastern Canada and the Northeastern United States. The virus is spread by mosquitoes from birds and only occasionally to humans. Most people suffer no noticeable illness.

Those who become infected with West Nile virus may suffer mild flu-like symptoms such as fever, headache and body aches.

Dr. Hukowich says the risk posed by West Nile virus to people remains very low.

"The mere presence of the virus in birds or mosquitoes doesn't automatically lead to people getting it."

To protect yourself, the Health Unit says avoid exposure to mosquitoes. Reduce the amount of time spent outside during dusk and dawn when mosquitoes are most active, wear long sleeved shirts and long pants when outside, wear insect repellent, make sure window and door screens fit tightly and do not have holes, and remove standing water from around properties where mosquitoes can breed.

A press release from the Health Unit says, to date, more than 125 confirmed cases of the West Nile virus have been found in birds throughout southern Ontario. Only two or three regions have not reported cases so far. For that reason the Health Unit is not submitting any more dead crows for testing in the government lab.

"We were asked to put a temporary halt on submitting specimens to the lab, but I don't see any reason for us to be sending more dead crows," says Hukowich. "We can say with certainty that the West Nile virus has spread through the southern part of the province."

THANKS for the memories

To all the many people and business owners I have had the pleasure of working with over the past few years as advertising sales representative for the Haliburton County Echo, I would like to say thanks and so long!

I have decided after much consideration to step down from my position at The Echo to pursue other interests.

I have thoroughly enjoyed watching your businesses thrive and grow over the years and hope you all achieve your goals in life. I appreciate your support.

It has been my privilege to work with each and every person at The Echo and I hope this transition for them, your business and The Echo will be a smooth one.

I will continue to work and live in the Highlands and look forward to seeing you.

Wishing all of you continued success and happiness in the future.

Clarica donates $50,600 to local kids

KENNETH JACKSON

Staff Reporter

Family Services of Haliburton County has been given $50,600 from Clarica to help make sure that local kids have lots of fun things to do.

The money was part of Clarica's Contribution to Canada's Children 2002 grant program which has provided nearly $1.36 million for 36 children programs across Canada.

Haliburton's share will help expand a successful pilot program at West Guilford Community Centre that tries to ensure every child has access to recreational opportunities.

"The money will also go to hiring a recreation co-ordinator to pull everything together and to fill in the holes," said Fay Martin, executive director of Family Services.

Martin says the money will only cover a one-year contract and the community needs to get involved to make sure the program lasts.

"We really want this to raise awareness in the community of the importance recreation has on children's lives," she said. "Fundraising is the only way to keep this program going."

She says Dysart et al used to run the program a long time ago, but no longer has the funding to do so.

"We wanted to give to the places where our employees volunteer and donate," said Danielle Robinson, a public relation officer for Clarica.

On hand at the cheque presentation from Clarica's Haliburton centre were Shawn Hagerman and Curtis Eastmure.

"When I worked at the YMCA in St. Catharines, I ran programs similar to this so it's nice to be able to help out," said Eastmure, who like Hagerman, spent the earlier part of his career working with children.

It is estimated that more than 300 children in Haliburton County will benefit from the donation.

Thanks Les... you'll be missed

For many people, the editorial staff is the public face of The Echo. We're the ones you see at events, we're the ones whose names appear at the top of stories or beside photographs. But, while we are a fairly essential component of this newspaper, we are only one part of a much bigger whole.

Although it might sometimes seem that the newspaper is a public institution – "Could you please come and echo

editorial

cover our meeting?" – it is, above all else, a business. The money people pay for their subscription or at the newsstand barely covers the price of printing the paper. The Echo absolutely depends on advertising dollars to pay all the other bills – staff salaries, office expenses, taxes, technology, hydro, and countless other expenses. No advertising, no Echo. No wonder we run all those shop locally promotions.

Ever since Creighton Feir died unexpectedly from a heart attack in 1994, Les Feero has been our advertising manager. Creighton's death had both deeply saddened and scared us. Creighton was Mr. Echo, for us and for the community. How would we survive without him? Would businesses continue to advertise? Les's task was daunting.

Years later, we can say with confidence that Les's incredible energy and dedication to the paper have helped us grow and become stronger. He's been a vital part of our success. Not only did he sell ads, working one-on-one with the businesses as our ambassador, but he was also tireless in his commitment to other community projects such as Winterfest and Midnight Madness.

This is not to say there was always a harmonious relationship between the advertising and editorial departments. Les doesn't have red hair for nothing. (Not to say that the editorial department hasn't had hints of the prima donna creeping in from time to time.) We've had our spats and disagreements, but we've always been friends because everyone here shares the same commitment to the paper as a whole. Each department is first among equals.

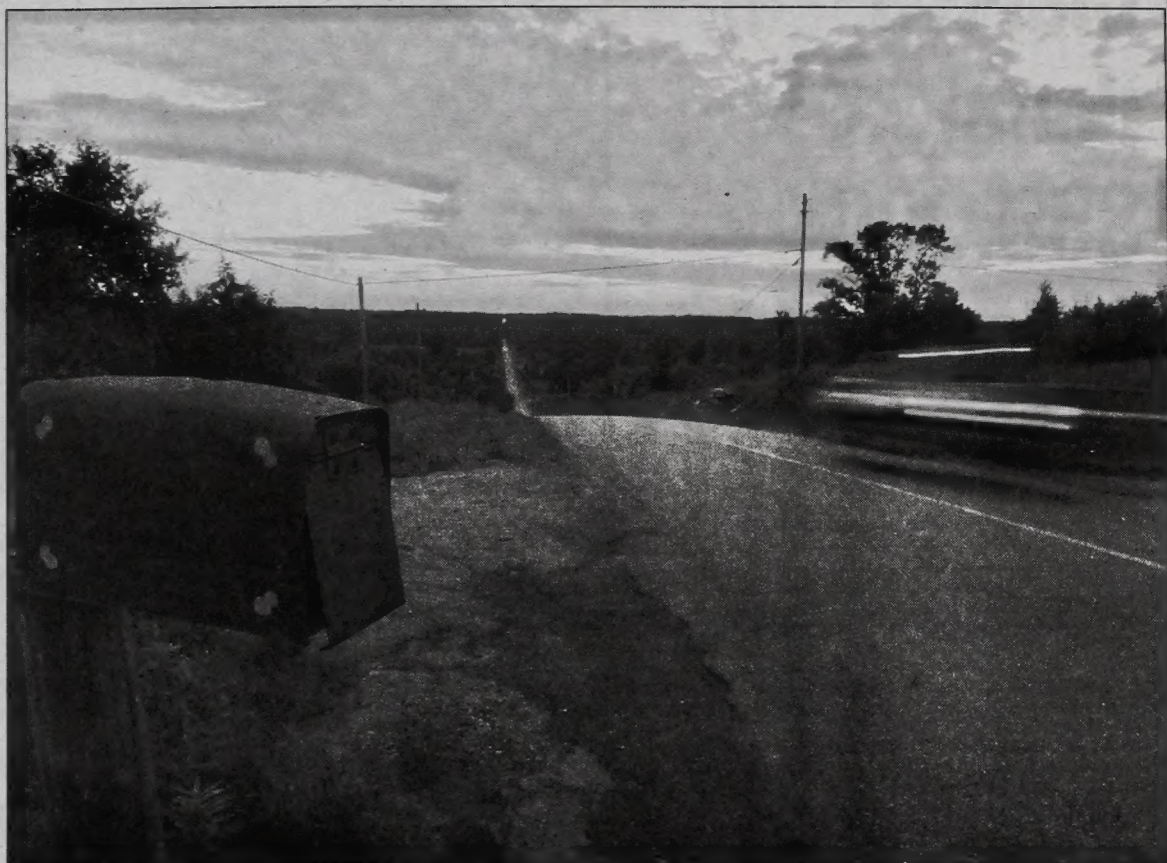

This week, Les's name will no longer be on The Echo's masthead at the bottom of this page. He is, as they say, a little burned out after all those years of countless deadlines, of trying to store little bits of information in your head, of trying to cope with the competing demands on your attention. This week he starts a new sales career at Bryson's Marina.

We really will miss him. Many of our parting gifts had humorous references to his infamous "bursts of opinion", but underneath all the ribbing and teasing there was a deep respect for all that he's done.

Sue Nicholson, our new advertising manager, has been with The Echo for several years and came back this summer after a brief hiatus. Her timing couldn't have been better.

Sue already shares the rest of the staff's faith in this newspaper – and this county. She also has strengths that are different, but not less important than Les's, and the rapport she has with local businesses is both vital and reassuring. We hope everyone joins us in congratulating her on her new role, and wishing her much personal and professional happiness.

Thanks, Les. Welcome, Sue.

A new view of ageing

One word most frequently used to describe life in our society to-day is hectic. It seems as if there never is enough time to savour the experiences of any particular stage. Parents rush their kids towards maturity, adults rush their way through the working years, then suddenly, oops, it's too late and one is just past it.

Well now that that very visible generation called "yuppies" is approaching this life after working, the effort is mounting to reshape society's view of this age group.

First off, so various media emphasize, the old labels need to be discarded and new ones fashioned. "Retired", which means to withdraw, seems to be rather negative in today's society. Using that term was once appropriate for two reasons – life after the working years was often short and to describe those few years of life after years of hard long labour as retired seemed fitting. But those now in this category and those approaching it don't consider this a time of withdrawal.

"Senior," another designation, is now coming under fire. Why, I do not know, for there are several complimentary definitions of the word. A senior can be defined as a person of high standing, an eminent or responsible person, according to the Oxford English Dictionary. That sounds great. There are several other definitions that suggest over-the-hill that we could choose to ignore rather than attempt to try to reject the word. Or we could just assert the obvious, that the opposite of senior is junior, and this would then easily categorize our entire society.

"Ageing" is a term that is often bantered around to describe this stage in our existence. We are hearing about ageing gracefully, ageing dangerously, etc. but the term encompasses far more than just that last stage of life. One definition is "showing the effect of time." Baby's first tooth does that.

"Elderly" is definitely out since, in our society, it clearly defines this group as old. The additional terms of "wise" and "venerable," which other societies often include in the term have not found much purchase in our modern time and place. So the problem still exists; what to call the ever increasing, ever younger group who have left the work world behind but continue to actively participate in society.

If we cannot seem to find a suitable label to mask the reality that life is approaching its natural conclusion, then perhaps, so the gurus tell us, we can at least mask the external visual signs of old age. Modern medicine and ancient folklore are combining to help us stave off these indications of time. Tummy tucks, voluptuous breasts, wrinkle free faces, and now even full lips are gaining in popularity for women as are hair implants for men.

In by-gone times the search for the proverbial fountain of youth was much sought after by explorers. Ponce de Leon was certain he had found it in southern Florida but generations of ageing, retired, elderly seniors flocking to that land have proved him wrong. Will our present day efforts to change the verbal or visual aspects of these late stages of life be any more successful?

Algonquin Highlands gives trails high priority

Trails and Tours Talk

by BARRIE MARTIN

The Township of Algonquin Highlands is blessed with numerous lakes and forested landscapes that attract tourists who are looking for recreational trail experiences. The current council, progressive in their thinking, recognizes the importance of their diverse trail resources – the excellent network of lakes for canoeing; the existing hiking trails that access diverse scenery, landscapes and points of interest; the good system of cross country ski trails and the extensive network of snowmobile trails – well organized and maintained.

The council is working with trail managers and owners within the municipality to realize the full potential of the trail resources. There is considerable potential for further trail development given the numerous logging trails, existing underdeveloped trail systems, old settlement roads, and large areas of crown lands.

The council is particularly interested in further developing their hiking trail system, which includes the Dorset Tower, Jim Cooper Lookout, Alvin Ferguson, Beech River and the Partridge Lake Trails. The development of a longer distance trail, the Algonquin Highlands Ridge Trail, linking Stanhope with Hawk Lake is almost complete. Other hiking trails in the municipality include The Park-to-Park Trail along the Algonquin Highlands northern boundary and the Frost Centre's hiking trails. Other trails that have been proposed for development – a forest heritage trail at Hawk Lake Log Chute, a hiking trail at Beetle Lake near Oxtongue Lake; a hunting heritage trail at Pine Springs and a backpacking trail east of Kushog Lake.

The council recognizes the value of upgrading and maintaining their hiking trail system. However, to date, it has been a challenge finding the expertise, funding and human resources to maintain the existing hiking trails. As a result, the trail quality is variable; not all trails are well constructed and maintained. There is also a lack of well-defined trailheads and staging areas and inadequate trail signage.

It is in this context that Algonquin Highlands approached the Haliburton Highlands Trails and Tours Network to assume the management and development of its hiking trails. After much discussion the Network's Board decided to get into the business of trail management. It is a big step for the Network. Until now, the Network has not owned or managed any trails; it has been busy promoting trails, building community awareness and support, bringing trail interests together and facilitating solutions to trail related issues. Signing the agreement was an act of faith for both partners – it took vision, trust and courage. But we did it and the arrangement promises to be a win-win situation. The vision is great hiking in Algonquin Highlands; the mission is to develop and promote Algonquin Highlands as a popular destination for hiking; and the goals are

- A variety of hiking experiences for users of different abilities
 - Increased use of hiking trails by visitors to and residents of Algonquin Highlands
 - Hiking trails that are constructed and maintained to consistent and best possible standards
 - A distinctive and high quality visual identity for hiking trails as identified in the Trail Development Template for Haliburton County
 - Interpretation of natural and cultural features and resources of Algonquin Highlands
- The objectives are modest but achievable for the first year:
- Work closely with the Algonquin Highlands volunteer trail committee to solicit ideas and information, and plan and implement the project.
 - Hold a public meeting to promote the project, determine needs, and solicit ideas, information and volunteers
 - Do field inventory and describe all existing hiking trails and enter information in Trails and Tours Trail inventory database. Locate trails using GPS technology. Identify existing and potential design, construction and management issues and potential for natural and cultural interpretation.

- Complete Stanhope to Hawk Lake Trail including securing landowner permission, necessary routing and clearing, and installing interim signage.

- Conduct necessary yearly maintenance on existing trails

- Produce an interim trail brochure that identifies and describes the Algonquin Highlands hiking trails.

The trail signs you will see going up over the next few weeks are an interim measure. It is our plan to replace these with permanent signs that follow the Trails and Tours template over the next couple of years as funding becomes available.

We have assembled a great team to make it happen. Jim Blake is collaborating with the Algonquin Highlands Trails Committee to coordinate the work. Committee members and volunteers Peter Brogden, Ray Laughlin, Maurice Smith, and Pamela Marsailles; summer trail technician, Anne Marie Fortner; and a crew of Ontario Rangers are doing the fieldwork. Gary Clements of MNR is providing equipment and technical support for GIS mapping and municipal staff is helping with signage. Much of the work is already done thanks to the energy and commitment of this team.

The Haliburton Highlands Trails and Tours Network is committed to assisting other municipalities and trail owners and managers to upgrade and develop their trails. We are ready to take a few more big steps.

Thank you for being a friend

More than 100 Trial competitors battled at the Canadian National Trials Championship in Haliburton. Participants came from as far as British Columbia and the United States. See additional photos and results on page 15.

Record numbers at Kash End Dash

Participation reached record highs while times fell at the 5th annual Kash End of Summer Dash. There were 188 runners who came out to run the 10 km course that started along Lake Kashagawigamog, breaking last year's mark of 145 runners. Added to the total were 59 children registered in the Kids 1 km run.

A four year race record fell as first place Bart Nichol shattered the previous best time by nearly a minute with his time of 33:35.35. The top female finisher, and 28th overall, was 12-year-old Stephanie Smith from Aurora, Ontario, who crossed the finish line at 43:17.17. Smith won her second Kash Dash in as many years. Local running phenom Sean Keaney placed 7th with a time of 37:54.54 just ahead of coach Markus Carl who clocked in at 38:18.18.

With more than 200 people total, the event is expected to raise nearly $4,000 this year for Canadian Physicians for Aid and Relief (CPAR). CPAR is a program that provides assistance to individuals, communities and grass-roots organizations to become more self-reliant with such things as agricultural activities.

The annual event has managed to raise more than $7,000 in total.

The Haliburton Highlands was the site for this year's Canadian National Trials Championship. There were 120 competitors from across Canada and the U.S. who negotiated their modified motocross bikes over and around natural obstacles such as 3 m. high rock faces on the 4 km loop located near Minnicock Lake, southeast of Haliburton. Classes were divided according to riding skill and ranged from Pro to D, or beginner. The rider with the fewest dabs (feet or any part of the rider's body that touches the ground) after a series of checkpoint challenges is named the winner.

A game for life

KENNETH JACKSON

Staff Reporter

From an era when he used a wooden racket to becoming one of the best in Canada, to today, a retiree in Haliburton County tennis has been Ron Miceli's passion.

It was the beginning of the 1955 summer season and Ron Miceli was just 10 years old when he got his hands on a cracked wooden racket. All summer he played through good and bad weather. It was what you might call love at first site or swing.

"It was just something I loved playing," says Miceli from his home on Monrock Lake near Wilberforce. "I started to play club tennis and tournaments with that racket."

Ron grew up in Mimico and saw his career as a tennis player flourish when he went to the University of Windsor for four years, earning his BA.

"There wasn't much competition in the university circuit. The only guys I had trouble with were the number one or two ranked guys," he says as if the matches were yesterday.

While living in Windsor he met a girl and ended up getting married and teaching for 30 years.

"I taught everything from Grade school to university," says the now retired school teacher.

In the mid-80s he had a two-year hiatus at Florida State University to get his Masters in Science. While earning his Masters he also taught an education class and played and coached on the Florida State tennis team.

"The competition there was much tougher than it was at Windsor," he says.

His need to play competitive tennis continued with the over-45 circuit in Canada.

"In 1994 I finished the season ranked number two in Canada," he says. "I never did get to play the number one ranked guy. I wanted to play him but with tournaments sometimes it's tough."

Four years ago Miceli gave up his busy city life and retired to a beautiful home on Monrock Lake.

He now teaches players of all ages the craft he has molded over the years.

"I teach in Bancroft, Haliburton and Peterborough. It allows me to keep my hand in the game," the 57-year-old says. "I'm actually playing better tennis now than I was when I was 47."

Now he is content with teaching and playing social tennis, as he calls it, because the competition is not very strong in the Highlands.

"I'm actually playing better tennis now than I was when I was 47."

Youth loses to experience

bottom: Framed in the side of the net, Kenneth gets low returning a shot from Miceli.

Here's the scenario. One tennis match. One guy is 21, the other 57. The 21-year-old needs to stop playing because he can barely breathe, whereas the 57-year-old has barely broken a sweat. Is there something I am missing here?

I should have known I was in for trouble when prior to the match the staff from The Echo were like, "Don't worry about it. You'll do fine." "What's the worse that could happen?"

Everything that could have happened did. My legs started to turn to jelly, my heart didn't beat, it just rattled like a riding lawnmower, and my lungs were like two flat balloons struggling to inflate.

All thanks to Ron Miceli, the local tennis pro who has played tennis for over 40 years.

Don't get me wrong, I am in pretty good physical condition and at the beginning of the match my body felt pretty good. But as the game went on and I had to constantly run down balls, you start to see things. It's not good when you see a bed and a bottle of water floating over the net.

"Hey Ron, why don't you try, because I don't think I am sweating enough?"

"Sure thing, Ken, just let me get warmed up," he said as he unleashed a backhand through my racket.

Warmed up? I am about to go six feet under here and Ron isn't even warmed up yet. That's when I knew I was in for a long Moridday morning.

The sun was out, it was hot and Ron didn't seem to notice that I was beginning to cry between points.

I kept going though, trying to gain back some of my dignity.

What a fool I was. Dignity? That went out the window when I first walked onto the court.

After about an hour I asked Ron if he wanted to take a break

"Ron, let's just sit down for a bit and ponder the finer things in life," I said, hoping his look of "I may not have my youth any more, but this kid isn't going to beat me" would go away.

It did and we took a break. Ron even brought water for me, but I had to drink it out of a tennis ball container. Nothing like it. The best water I ever drank.

After indulging in some wonderful conversation about how good I was playing we got back to the game.

Let's just say I didn't do any better than earlier in the game, but at least I am consistent.

My old football coach would say, "Consistency is key to winning the game." A lot of good that is doing me now in this tennis match. I am consistent. Consistently bad.

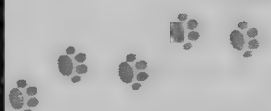

Ron and I will be having a rematch as soon as my blisters heal on my feet and I stop having nightmares.

INFORMATION SESSION

Proposal to amend Special Study Area – Parks designation for Crown land
Kimball Lake area, Township of Algonquin Highlands

PURPOSE: In 1998, the Ministry of Natural Resources (MNR) submitted a proposal to amend the Special Study Area - Parks designation of the Bracebridge District Land Use Guidelines. During the consultation that we undertook, concerns were raised by the public and subsequently carefully considered by MNR. An information session is now being held to discuss our proposed decision to remove the Parks designation. We will also discuss mitigation measures for forest management, and determine if there are any new issues that we should be aware of. The information session will be followed by a field trip on forest management. Details as follows:

Saturday September 21, 2002

Leslie M. Frost Centre (12 km south of Dorset on east side of Highway 35)

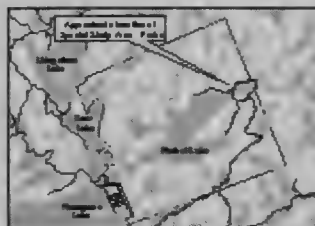

Information Session: 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. Field Trip: 1 to 4 p.m.

Please RSVP by September 5th if you will be attending the field trip. If you are unable to attend the information session, but wish to provide new information, please send a written response by September 30, 2002. Contact details: Michelle Cizmar; MNR; 1350 Highfalls Road RR 2, Bracebridge, ON P1L 1W9; Telephone (705) 646-5524; Fax (705) 645-8372. Please contact Ms. Cizmar if you would like further information.

BACKGROUND: The intent of the Parks designation was to apply guidelines (i.e. prohibiting timber harvesting) to protect the area, until it could be determined if there were life science features of significance to the provincial parks program. Studies were subsequently completed, concluding that there are no features of significance to the provincial parks program. On that basis, MNR submitted its proposal.

Since the proposal, Ontario's Living Legacy Land Use Strategy (MNR, 1999) designated Crown land in the area as part of a remote access Enhanced Management Area. The intent is to maintain the remote characteristics, while managing for high quality forest resources and backcountry recreation. Forest management activities must meet access provisions of the Strategy. Forest management must also comply with the policies and principles of the French-Severn Forest Management Plan. For example, special Area of Concern prescriptions will be applied where appropriate to protect values requiring additional protection. The public is invited to participate in forest management planning; an open house is expected to be in December.

Federal study indicates small percentage own majority of firearms

The federal government recently commissioned a study on firearms in Canada. The following are some of the highlights:

- There are an estimated 7.9 million firearms in Canada.

- The vast majority of firearm owners have either rifles (74%) or shotguns (71%). One in ten (11%) owners indicated they owned a handgun.

- The top three per cent of firearm owners hold approximately 15% of all firearms or, on average, 15.5 firearms per owner. The same group owns more than one third of all handguns in the country. For the remainder of the firearm-owning population, the mean number of firearms owned is 2.74.

- A small group of firearm owners owns a significant number of the total firearms.

For example, one respondent indicated that he had a collection of 302 rifles while another said he owned 201 shotguns.

- More than half of Canada's firearms can be found in Ontario (32%) and Quebec (24%), followed by British Columbia (14%). However, the North, the Atlantic Provinces, Manitoba and Saskatchewan have the most firearms per capita.

- Eight per cent of respondents said they intended to disable or divest themselves of some or all of their firearms in the next two years. About one quarter (25%) of those intending to dispose of or disable their firearms intend to turn them over to the police.

- Almost two thirds (61%) indicated that they use their firearm very infrequently (once a year or less) or never, compared to under half (43%) who said the same in a 1999 survey.

- There are 1.14 firearm owners per firearm-owning household.

About the study:

In the fall of 2001, GPC Research contacted 21,650 Canadians, achieving a sample size of over 3,000 firearm owners, for the purpose of establishing an updated estimate of the total number of firearms in Canada. A survey of this magnitude has an accompanying margin of error of +/-2.06% at the national level, with a 95% confidence level.

Field naturalists unveil memorial to devoted member

KENNETH JACKSON

Staff Reporter

The following are brief reports of items discussed at the Aug. 24 annual general meeting of the Haliburton Highlands Field Naturalists held at Snowdon Park.

The 20 or so naturalists who attended the meeting were blessed with a gorgeous sunny summer day. The meeting was kicked off with a pot luck lunch. Special guests were members of the late Brenda Ann Chambers' family. Her brother and sister and their families were there for the first time to see the trails at Snowdon Park that were named in Brenda's memory last year.

"We made a point of being here," said an emotional Chris Chambers, Brenda's brother. "It was a nice surprise for all of us."

Snowdon Park report

Minden Hills councillor Ron Buchanan discussed possible future plans for the park.

He said there is money available from Minden Hills for small projects the field naturalists would like done.

"We can make the paths better. We can use ATVs to haul gravel in. People need to have a safe trail to walk on," he said.

The thought of motorized vehicles on the paths in Snowdon Park didn't sit well with the naturalists.

"We must be able to make the paths better without bringing in an ATV, because once you have one ATV you have more," said chairperson Sheila Ziman.

Buchanan's reply was that they needed to build up the trails and add benches because not everyone can walk the entire trail without sitting down.

"We have the manpower," he said.

The Haliburton Highlands Field Naturalists pose with a sign at Snowdon Park honouring a former member

Administrative issues

The group agreed that the 2002 program was a good one. Peter Brogden thanked all members who contributed to the success of last year. The new program will start in September and the first newsletter of the new year will follow shortly thereafter.

Internal positions

Ziman asked for a volunteer to be the Federation of Ontario Naturalists liaison. Don Smith accepted the role.

The role and merits of a club president were discussed. At present the club is led by five chairpersons who rotate leadership and duties. No one wanted to run as president so the club agreed to the status quo.

Membership report

The club has approximately 47 members. A call to renew membership was issued. Individuals will be asked to pay $25 and families $30.

Junior Naturalists summer program

The program was labelled a huge success and organizer Jean Godawa wants to run two week-long camps along with the one-day-a-week camp they started this summer.

"I think we should not jump into anything; maybe run one week and see how that goes," said Ziman.

As for the day camps this summer, Godawa says attendance has hovered around 18 kids per camp.

Each camp had a different subject. For instance, one week the kids, aged eight to 10, would focus on plants and the next on rocks.

Al Upton one of the driving forces behind Home Support

ROXANNE CASEY

Resource development co-ordinator
Haliburton County Home Support Services

As most people are aware, the majority of our services are provided to you by dedicated registered volunteers, who give of their time. It is always a sad time for an agency such as this when one of our volunteers decides to move away.

Al Upton has been volunteering for Home Support since March of 1999. If you receive a frozen meal delivery on Thursdays, chances are Al Upton has done your deliveries. If you have ever needed to be driven out of town for a medical appointment chances are you have had Al Upton drive for you.

Al has put in more than 850 volunteer hours with our agency alone. Al never says no, he is always available to do whatever we call and ask of him.

Al and his wife Bev have decided to move to Bayfield, Ontario, just outside of Kincardine. They have bought a Winabago and plan to do a lot of traveling during the winter months.

The town of Bayfield is gaining a most dedicated and reliable volunteer. As I once read, volunteers are our greatest natural resource ... and we are losing one of our resources.

We would like to wish Al and Bev the best of luck, and if you should ever return to Haliburton we have a volunteer position for you.

On a lighter note Haliburton County Home Support took an enthusiastic group of people on The Stoney Lake Dinner Cruise. The day started out on a bus excursion to the Whjetung Ojibwa Craft and Art Gallery and then to the Canadian Canoe Museum. Both these stops were very enlightening.

The piece de la resistance was the Cruise on Stoney Lake. Adele Barnes, our trip conveyor, reported that the boat meandered around small islands going down the lake as far as Burleigh Falls. The captain pointed out all

Al Upton, in the driver's seat as usual, has been a volunteer driver for Haliburton Home Support Services for three and a half years. points of interest, one being a home with a living room of more than 3,000 square feet.

The boat docked on one of the islands while supper was being prepared. The dinner was scrumptious; they were offered a selection of steak, chicken, vegetables, potatoes, salad and squares for dessert. I gather no one came home hungry.

Once the dinner was finished the music began and our group had an evening of dancing in the moonlight. It has been reported back to me that Adele would like Marge to travel on all our excursions ... she was the life of the party. A great time was had by all. Remember! We do have a trip going to Orillia in September.

I look forward to keeping you updated on the happenings of Haliburton County Home Support Services. Until next month - Roxanne.

Dysart weighs pros and cons of converting old sewage plant

low, as they can after cottagers leave, it can cause several problems. DeAngelis explained you need a certain volume to keep it all moving through the system. Secondly, he says, the process of treating the sewage itself once it reaches the new plant is dependent upon a minimum amount of sewage being there.

Municipalities are often caught, he says, in the same trap when building new facilities: they have to decide how big to make their capacity with the idea of future expansion or heavier use of the system in mind, while at the same time not make them too big to handle the present, smaller flows.

"There would be approximately 1,000 cubic metres of capacity (in old plant for septage). It can be used to equalize flow into the plant," said DeAngelis.

However, he also warned them he still was not sure whether or not the plant is in good enough shape to warrant investing the change-over dollars.

Reeve Murray Fearrey commented that the storage capacity could handle all of their holding tanks and would be a benefit to the municipality.

Tammy McKelvey, Dysart's chief administrative officer, says at this stage the idea of a septage holding facility is just that - an idea. It is an appealing idea, though, because there are no holding facilities for septage in the county. The closest haulers or "honey trucks" which have winter storage that she is aware of come from Cobocork.

"This is very early yet. There would have to be a lot of approvals passed before we could go ahead," she says.

Fall safety

Seminar presenter, Arnold Fairburn, from the Muskoka Homebuilders, explains the usage of a harness on construction sites at one of the Haliburton County Homebuilders Builders Association's "fall protection" seminars. More than 150 local contractors have attended one of three seminars. In Ontario, starting in June any person working on a construction site must have taken a basic safety course on fall prevention, learning such things as proper anchoring. Site inspectors have been busily enforcing the rules in the Highlands.

The Kinmount Fair is one of the best fall fairs in the province. Find out what's being offered in this week's County Life

Endless summer

by Martha Perkins

Just like the waves rolling in to a sandy point of beach on Haliburton Lake, life keeps pushing time forward and memories keep pulling it back in the lives of the people who are lucky enough to spend their summers here.

Forward and back, present and past. This constant tug and pull of nature won't allow time to stand still here at the cottage compound of the Hodgson family. However, there is an aura of timelessness that envelopes this magical place. Years become interchangeable, memories repeat themselves through the generations.

Is that Glen, Doug, Anna, Tom, Margaret and Lou shouting out "Watch me!" as they run off the dock and splash into the water? Sixty years ago it was. Thirty years ago it was a various collection of their 19 children. But check today's calendar and you realize these sounds of children enjoying the freedom of youth must belong to the third wave of Hodgson children, all 25 (soon to be 26) of them.

What these children don't realize, can't yet realize, is that 30 years from now, memories of this moment in time, and dozens more like it, will be what keeps their childhood alive. These carefree, happy, loving, secure days at the cottage will be deeply ingrained into their sense of self and identity. These childhood days of summer will be such a special part of their lives that they'll be back, with their children, keeping the traditions alive.

To get a deeper sense of that timelessness, flip through one of several photo albums in Tom and Marie Hodgson's cottage at the centre of this family compound on Haliburton Lake. The albums are a fabulous chronicle of the 60 years the Hodgson family has spent summers at The Point.

At first, the albums act as a simple catalogue of happiness. Smiling, joyful faces stare out at you from the past. But as the years progress, something odd happens. What point in the past are you looking at? Which generation of Hodgsons?

If you ignore the fashions of the day – what woman today would take the time to sweep her hair into a perfect beehive before she sets off across the lake in a canoe? – and the fact that some photos are black and white while others are colour, the similarities between the generations are striking. Sons playing on the beach 30 years ago are now playing on the beach with sons who look just they did. Even the in-laws bear certain resemblances. Is that Marie, Tom's wife, surrounded by a gaggle of children or Marie, her nephew Chris's wife? Is that Anna or is it her daughter Allison's daughter, Kirsten, or even Chris's daughter Charlotte? You have to pause a moment to determine whether that's a picture of Tom's son Craig or Doug's sons, John and Chris and Andrew. Time is playing funny tricks at The Point.

It all started in 1942 with a cottage built by Clayton and Margaret Hodgson, carved out of the woods next to the vast forests the Hodgson lumber camps used as their base.

Clayton and Margaret knew that as their six children grew up, jobs would likely take them away from the Highlands. But they wanted their children to always have a reason to come back. And so the property surrounding their cottage was severed into lots, one for each child.

Glen, the oldest, and his wife Shirley would eventually live a few kilometres down the road in Fort Irwin so they never had the need to build a summer retreat. But Doug and his wife Barbara, Anna and her husband Vance English, Margaret and her husband Don Downey and Lou and his wife Kleona all built cottages within eyesight of their parents' place, now owned by Tom and Marie.

In subsequent years, Lou would sell his cottage to the Woodsides, cousins from Pennsylvania, and Anna sold hers to long-time family friend Gray Sisson, but there's enough room, and enough welcome, in the remaining three Hodgson cottages to accommodate the entire family for one of their infamous reunions.

Since four of the Hodgson children - Doug, Anna, Margaret and Tom - were teachers, they could spend most of their summers here, the family's number growing with the birth of each child. Glen and Lou spent part of their careers as politicians, Glen as MPP for Victoria-Haliburton, Lou as an MPP in Scarborough, so their children could spend a lot of time here, too.

"Our families grew up together so the cousins are like brothers and sisters," says Tom, sitting in the living room of his cottage, all windows opening up to the view of the beach and lake.

Marie nods her head in agreement. "It's only because of this place that that's happened," she says.

Ten years ago, Tom and his siblings all took part in the writing of Living Traditions: The Story of Clayton and Phyllis Hodgson. It was Tom who wrote Summers at The Point, which we are reprinting today, along with a brief explanation of how Clayton ended up at Haliburton Lake, to share a bit of the magic of 60 years of summers at the cottage.

Summers at The Point

In an excerpt from his new book, Tom Hodgson recalls his first night at Haliburton Lake, Grandmother Dart in a canvas beach chair and enthusiastically played euchre games

Why Haliburton Lake?
After his discharge from the Army in February 1919, my father Clayton Hodgson began a partnership in the wood and lumber business with two brothers, Charles and Tom Hodgson, called the Hodgson Bros. Lumber Co. In 1923 the company was renamed the C.W. Hodgson Lumber Co. when the partnership ended.

In 1941 the Coleman Lake Mill was moved to Haliburton Lake in Harburn Township - one of the nine purchased from the Crown by the Canadian Land and Emigration Co. This company eventually failed and was taken over by Irwin, a Peterborough Lumberman and a Toronto lawyer Lockhart Gordon, who sold a large block of land in 1940 to my father centered at Fort Irwin.

Summers at the Point

In July 1942, we moved into our unfinished cottage on this beautiful sandy point on Haliburton Lake. Dad and Mother (Phyllis) hurried our move to the cottage, still under construction, because a polio scare had prompted Dr. Louis Carroll to advise that the family be moved from the village as soon as possible. Windows were not yet installed and a large opening in the west wall of the living room was ready for Sid Thomas to build the fireplace that warmed and smoked us for 40 years.

The first night is etched clearly in my mind. Dad and Mother were in the bedroom off the dining room. It became Aunt Ruth's room, so named by cousin Beatrice Woodside. We boys had the west bedroom with double bunk beds. I remember using the open window rather than go out into pitch darkness to the outhouse. The room next to ours became a guest room and the third bedroom on the east side was the room where my sisters Anna and Margaret and cousin Phyllis Hodgson settled in. The walls between these rooms were only nine feet high so we could peek over at guests next door or talk back and forth long after we were supposed to settle down. At times we visited each other by crawling along the open partitions. What stories these walls could tell of our childhood at The Point!

It was the spring of 1942 when Dad loaded the family into a boat and proceeded to inspect several sites for a family cottage. Some of us think he had already seen this sandy point with the magnificent view and secretly wanted us to confirm his choice - which we did. Workmen immediately set to work clearing a thick growth of balsam trees, leaving a mass of small birch trees.

All the building materials were transported up the lake on a large raft which Dad got from Jack Bowen. This raft later had a girls' and boys' change house on it for us to get ready for our swims, and the raft was also big enough to serve as a floating deck for tables and canvas chairs. Uncle Russell Dart drew up plans for the cottage and Bill Roberts and Tom Roberts, with a crew of men, set about to build it. Both Tom and Bill Roberts were deaf and communicated by writing on lumber used in building the cottage.

My brother Doug, who was 15, worked with the men and each evening and morning drove a team of horses the three miles through a bush trail to and from the stable at the mill site. He later got a nasty foot injury and was laid off to recuperate.

The benefits of cottage life were evident

Good Times were had by all at our 28th Annual COUNTRY GOOD TIMES 2002!!

The weekend was another success. Our Community seems to keep proving that when we all work together we all succeed and have a Good Time. Thank you to the Monmouth Volunteer Fire Department and the Wilberforce Scouting organization for keeping us fed all weekend and the Wilberforce Legion Ladies Auxiliary for Sunday morning pancakes. The tearoom in the Lloyd Watson Centre was a delightful stop and presented by the Anglican Church. The parade was fabulous and longer than ever - there are a lot of creative minds in our communities. The amateur contest just keeps on growing and the talent presented gets better every year. We hope to see you again next year. Thank you to Charles Hughes from the Harcourt Chapel for coordinating the Sunday morning church service. Thank you to the many flea market vendors who offered us a variety of items to purchase. And we probably should thank Doug Stephen and Danny Linkert for their model train displays, although we are quite sure that they were having just as much fun as they were providing. Great Show Guys!!

The Volunteer Monmouth Recreation Committee co-ordinates this weekend including Friday and Saturday night dances, the parade, the amateur contest, the midway and various other activities. We can not do this without the enormous amount of time donated by the generous volunteers from our own community and many neighbouring friends. A tremendous thank you to those of you who helped to be ticket sellers, the bar servers, the clowns, the clown decorators, all of the parade participants, the helpers in the field, the Community Police volunteers, the support from the Township of Monmouth employees, the Scotiabank employees, the sign makers and all those who helped throughout the weekend. Thank you to each Recreation Board member who worked hard to put it all together. We can always use more help and more board members. If you are interested in helping keep Country Good Times a part of the regular events occurring in Wilberforce, please leave your name and phone number with the Municipality of Highlands East office at 448-2981.

and Dad not only provided it for us but gave two beautiful beaches and land on Haliburton Lake for public use. He also gave or sold land for a nominal amount to friends such as Jack Cryderman and various relatives.

Old photos tell a story of what a mecca this place became for five generations of the family and for many, many friends and relatives. We have a snapshot of Grandmother Dad on the beach seated in a canvas chair reading a newspaper. The beach was the centre of cottage life. It was a place for us to play, to swim, or just to listen to adult talk. In later years we, in turn, sat and talked and watched our children grow up with their cousins. This third generation formed life-long friendships.

Euchre was played with great enthusiasm, usually in the evenings but daytime as well. The night games were lit by coal oil lamps and later by electricity from our own Delco plant. An enduring memory is of Uncle Joe Hodgson thumping down a winning card with great relish and suitable victory noises. Dad played a shrewd game and never tired of outguessing and outplaying his opponents. In old age Mother played cards with all her grandchildren and would entertain herself with solitaire which she passed on to each generation of the family.

Because Mother and Dad were so active in community life and beyond we had many interesting guests. Premier Leslie Frost flew in by Forestry plane one day and had lunch with us. Betty Kennedy of CFRB and CBC fame loved to visit with my parents. Aspiring and successful politicians came to see Dad for advice or to socialize. I recall Douglas Fisher, MP, journalist Donald Fleming (Diefenbaker's Minister of Finance), Elston Cardiff, MP, Margaret Aitken (niece of Lord Beaverbrook), the writer Byrn Hope Sanders, Garfield Case, MP (who had defeated General McNaughton in a famous by-election at the end of World War II).

All of our aunts and uncles and almost all cousins came at one time or another – especially to Hodgson family reunions of 1955, 1969, 1977 and 1986.

Can you imagine the responsibility, work and expense all this entertaining entailed for my generous Mother and Dad? Details of Mother's cooking ability have been written in other parts of this book but a short account is appropriate here.

In the early years, lake ice was stored in sawdust each winter. The ice house stood where my garden is today. We took these large chunks of ice to the lake to wash off the sawdust and how beautiful they were, sparkling and crystal clear in the sunlight.

Provisions were brought by boat during the first summer. Dad would carry boxes of food across the sawdust yard at the mill to the boat and haul them up the lake to the beach here. Mother cooked on a wood stove in a small kitchen with no insulation. Her face was red from the heat. The food she prepared was absolutely delicious: new potatoes with their skins on, fresh vegetables from her garden such as newly shelled peas, top cuts of meat roasted to perfection, fresh-homemade rolls and raspberry pie fit for a king.

(Mother led berry-picking excursions to nearby wood lots.)

Washing was done in a tub with a scrub board. My two sisters would take the sheets to the lake for rinsing. (I know! Ecology was still only a word in the 1940s.)

The cottage witnessed many dramatic moments. My brother Glen likes to recall the famous chicken house raid. A chicken coop had been added to the side of the ice house. Brother Doug bought a disparate bunch of chickens and six white ducks. One night, long after we had settled down, all hell broke loose in the chicken coop! Dad grabbed his rifle and Mother followed with the flashlight. Cousin Leona (Hodgson) Scott was close behind.

Dad got off one shot which woke everyone up. The intruder, either a skunk or a weasel, got away but what didn't get away was Dad's dismay in discovering that, in the excitement, his pajama bottoms had disappeared. Mother and Leona - let the record show - acted with lady-like decorum.

We added a goat to our growing farm family. It was my honour to milk the beast. It was believed goat's milk would cure Dad's ulcer. We got to hate this animal. It was always ramming the unwary. One afternoon Lila Laking and Madeline Austin, of Haliburton arrived to visit Mother. Hours later their driver, Jack Hoxie, could not be found. Much to everyone's amusement he was found peeking out the outhouse door. The goat, well positioned, eyed him back and perhaps was hoping to get a shot at its next victim, our unhappy guest.

I am certain all our guests will recall visits to the saw mill in full operation. A must was to visit George Thayer in the engine room. He was one of my favorite adults as I watched with awe when he turned on the steam which slowly drove the large piston that powered the huge drive wheel.

Meanwhile, guests upstairs in the mill could see the sawyer, Fred Maunders, empower the team drive to load a log on the carriage which ran rapidly up and down the track past the whirling saw. Adrian Cooper manned the carriage and Val Hoxie pushed the sawn lumber through the edger. Occasionally he would have to jump up on the table and pour oil on the saws to prevent fire when a piece of lumber got stuck. Edgings and slabs moved to the "Mad House" to be cut up and thrown into the hopper. Oh, the noise and wonderful smells of fresh cut wood made a visit there tremendously exciting!

'I see John Y. Hodgson imaginatively organizing a funeral for a dead sapsucker. He placed a black shroud over the wagon and arranged for his little attendants, Katherine, James, Kerry, Chris and Andrew, to stand guard with sword and gun.'

After the men were fed, guests were treated to a meal in the cook house. Stewart Dawson was the cook and memories of his pies in metal plates still recall a special time.

Dad provided boats, motors and punts for us to use and enjoy. Our first boat was a cedar-strip boat with several rows of seats with wooden backs. It was powered by a 10-horse motor. Dad got this boat through cousin Alf Hodgson - a game warden at the time. Dad bought a new boat from Rex Boice some years later. Ab LaRue delivered it and took it out for a trial run. No one knew a gas line had broken in transit, and with a loud bang the engine caught fire. Doug was in the boat as well as Ab and our English Springer spaniel, Brig. Dad yelled from the shore, "use the paddle and get water on that engine." This action put the fire out, much to everyone's relief, but it was a close call.

A much happier event that will always remain in my memory took place in August 1945. World War II ended with the surrender of Japan. The Gordons invited us to their dining cottage high above Haliburton Lake on Gordon's Point. It was a splendid celebration carried out with great style. They had set a buffet on a long table with casseroles and freshly baked biscuits. A buffet-style dinner was a new experience for many of us. All preparations were done by their staff and so we felt like visiting royalty. Tommy and Mrs. Gordon (Uncle and Aunt to Walter Gordon, former Finance Minister) were a gracious couple who made us feel at home.

A decade or so later, when they said their final goodbyes to their beloved Haliburton Lake, Mrs. Gordon gave Mother her much prized white canoe. This canoe is still in the family. The Gordons also had a beautiful inboard boat and would often come by to take us for gentle rides around the lake. It was "very Muskoka," if you know what I mean. Tommy Gordon was always impeccably dressed; i.e. white running shoes, white flannels and blue blazer. He cut a dashing figure on the lake.

As the family grew up Dad subdivided the property to give each of us our own place. Margaret and Anna got the outside lots. Margaret and Don Downey built their cottage in 1964. Doug built his cottage next to Anna's lot in 1960 and later sold it to Anna and Vance English in 1966. Marie and I moved into the sleeping cabin next to the big cottage, also in 1966. Eleven years later we moved into the big cottage and Glen and Shirley took over our cabin which was later sold to Doug and Barb in 1977. Louis and Kleo added to and renovated the boat house and stayed there until they sold it to Dr. John and Linda Woodside in 1976. Anna and Vance sold their cottage and lot to Grey and Joanne Sisson in 1980.

The picture I have of the 1960s and 1970s is of 19 grandchildren building sand castles on the beach, playing with their toys in a world of sand and water. Little truck roads appeared with pebbles and sticks to mark the way.

I see John Y. Hodgson imaginatively organizing a funeral for a dead sapsucker. He placed a black shroud over the wagon and arranged for his little attendants, Katherine, James, Kerry, Chris and Andrew to stand guard with sword and gun. (He had seen Winston Churchill's funeral in the theatre in 1965).

I remember my sister Margaret running beside her son Hugh so that he could learn to ride a bike and join Jade, Shawn and Pam and all the older cousins on their bike rides. Who could forget Aunt Barb's parade with Bob, Lou-Ann, Alison and all the kids dressed in various costumes to parade over to Suttonplace so that the Hemings and Scarlatas could enjoy the fun? Craig and Erik played with their cousins in the fort. (Years later Katherine's children, Jamie, Sarah and John, played in the same fort.)

Martin, Keith, Marianne and Lenard often joined their cousins for the fun. As all these children grew up toys gave way to water skis, parasails, sailboats, dune buggies and surfboards. John and Linda Woodside's J-Craft was kept busy when our kids joined their American cousins Jerry, Susan and Jennifer to learn the art of water skiing.

The one strong impression that emerges is that three generations of our family have played and grown up together in this place. We all learned to appreciate each other and so have fulfilled Mother and Dad's dream of a nurturing family haven that all began with a boat ride a half century ago on Haliburton Lake - our Golden Pond.

First Public Notice

FISH STOCKING IN NEW WATERS PROPOSED IN THE MINISTRY OF NATURAL RESOURCES' BANCROFT DISTRICT

The Ministry of Natural Resources is proposing to stock Rainbow Trout into two local lakes, which historically have not been inhabited by this species.

The lakes this Ministry is proposing to stock are:

- a) Horseshoe Lake, Minden Township - Introduce Rainbow Trout to a lake which previously supported lake trout and warm water species.
- b) Glamor Lake, Glamorgan and Monmouth Township - Introduce Rainbow Trout to a lake in which the current Lake Trout population is in decline.

The purpose of this proposal is to provide new short and long term angling opportunities for trout and divert some of the present heavy fishing pressure away from current lake trout fisheries in the district. The contribution of this proposal will also help in the achievement of targets for cold water angling opportunities identified in the Minden District Land Use Guidelines. The project is being planned in accordance with an approved Class "C" Environmental Assessment for small Scale MNR Projects. This notice is intended to give you the opportunity to provide input to the planning of this project. Where you feel, after consulting with MNR staff, that serious environmental concerns remain unresolved it is your right to request that the project be subject to an individual environmental assessment under the Environmental Assessment Act. The decision rests with the Minister of the Environment.

Comments and information collected regarding this proposal will be kept on file unless otherwise requested, will be available for public review.

You are invited to direct any inquiries, or comments regarding the introduction of Rainbow Trout in Horseshoe Lake of Minden Township, and Glamor Lake of Glamorgan and Monmouth Township by August 31st 2002.

The local dancers were complimented on their Highland tartan, which they wore at special events such as the parade through the streets of Saint John, N.B.

Highland Twirlers represent county at national square dance convention

Thirteen couples from the Haliburton Highlands Twirlers attended the 13th National Square Dance convention in Saint John, N.B. on July 17 to 20th.

There were approximately 2,900 dancers from Canada, the U.S.A., Britain, Scotland, Japan and Australia.

The Twirlers were complimented on the Haliburton

Tartan worn in the parade.

Most of the dancers stayed in the Maritimes for a holiday after the dance.

The local dancers are all looking forward to the 14th National Convention in two years being held in Calgary, Alberta.

After working at General Motors, Merrill Barry returned to his roots in the Highlands. He's owned garages, a sand and gravel operation and a logging business.

Merrill Barry Company celebrates its 35th anniversary

This year, the Merrill Barry Company Ltd. celebrates its 35th anniversary.

Merrill is from a local family in West Guilford. He is the son of Murray and Helen Barry, who had six boys and one girl.

He worked at General Motors in Oshawa for three years then, at 22 years of age, bought Riverside Garage in West Guilford from Bill Curry in 1967. He attempted to raise the business up, which he did very well.

Married in 1968 to Merrie (from Haliburton) together they have raised three daughters. Debbie Stinson, Terri-Lynn Holden and Andrea Prentice. They have four grandchildren.

He sold his garage in 1977 and has carried on his dad's sand and gravel construction business. He also does logging as well. The Barrys built and operated The Guilford Boy Gift Shop and Restaurant in West Guilford for several years. It was named after a race horse owned by Merrill's grandfather, George.

The Barrys have met lots of wonderful people in the last 35 years of business and would like to thank them all and also the local people for their support.

He now is continuing on in business with his son-in-law Lance Stinson.

Thank you for 35 years.

Merrie and Merrill Barry

Fitzgerald family puts on a musical show to remember

Have you ever given much thought about what a fiddle is? As I watched the Fitzgeralds play the other night I thought about the odd shaped wooden boxes they held in their hands. Human arms moved the bows, sometimes sawing away furiously and sometimes stroking the strings gently. Strings were moved by the bows that moved the bridge of their fiddles. The bridge moved the sexy curves of the violin bodies, which moved the air. The air moved the eardrums of the audience, which moved nerve signals. These signals were sent to everyone's brain. The brain interpreted the low sounds of the thick G strings and the high sounds of the very thin E strings and the sounds of the middle A and D strings.

From these four small strings we got warm full sounds, hoarse whispery tones, and gentle tones or wild, frenzied pitches. The smooth flowing rhythm of the 'Tennessee Waltz' warmed many hearts while lively, rollicking reels challenged everyone to refrain from joining right in.

Strong beats, springy beats, fast beats and happy beats, what a night to remember! Truly amazing!

The Community Potluck Dinner and special performance by the 'FITZ ALL SIZES' was a success. The gathering of 45 people may have been small in number but their enthusiasm was overwhelming. The dinner table was laden with scrumptious food and friends and families had a good time eating, reminiscing and watching the show.

As for the Fitzgeralds how would one describe them? Energetic? No they are more than that! This family, so rich in Irish heritage, is just filled with a relentless power surge of musical energy. Their heritage dates back to when many Irish settlers came to Canada and settled in the Ottawa Valley area and they actually live in the one of the original Fitzgerald Family homes near Maynooth. They are very proud of their Irish ancestry and have just recently returned from a visit to the Emerald Isle. They are so multi musically talented. When it comes to the fiddle they are all equally adept at creating sensational sounds. They have their own particular style of performing and all the family can not only play the fiddle but can lively step dance as well.

Tony, Judy, Greg, Megan, Danny and Willy Fitzgerald we want to thank you for your music, your wit, and your charm.

To all Irish Canadians, 'May the Wind Always be at Your Back, EH!!!!'

Don't forget the Pre Teen Back to School Dance for ages seven to 16 on September 13. Admission $3. The dance is from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m.

Trust
your home to a professional renovator

Trust your home to a professional renovator

Hiring someone to do renovation work on your home is a serious decision. You are placing what may be the largest asset you own-your home-in someone else's hands, along with your dreams. You are also inviting someone into your life for days, weeks, sometimes even longer. So you need to find a renovator you can trust and work with.

It may take time to be certain that you are hiring the right renovator. When you meet a renovator for the first time you may feel, "Here is someone I would enjoy working with. This company would do a good job." But while first impressions are important, they need to be backed by facts.

Professional renovators will give you the facts about themselves. They will tell you how long they have been in business and explain their background, technical expertise and work experience. They will show you examples of previous projects they have worked on. And you'll get references-names of past customers, suppliers and sub-trades.

Professional renovators are prepared to invest the time to build your trust. They will meet with you to discuss your plans and objectives. They will look at your home and explain what it takes to do your project right. They will draw on their experience and knowledge to offer suggestions on how to improve your plans. And they'll work with you to ensure you get the best value for your budget.

Homeowners are often concerned about the disruptions of renovation. Professional renovators will outline how the work will be done, how it might affect your household routine and the measures they will take to minimize any inconvenience to you. They'll also explain their "customer communication system"-daily updates, regular meetings and how to get hold of them on short notice if needed.

You may worry about what will happen once the work gets going: Will there be cost overruns? Will the work be done on time? What happens if something goes wrong? A professional renovator always works with a written contract that spells out your agreement in detail-the work to be done, the materials to be used, the cost and payment structure, timelines, the responsibilities of each party and how to deal with potential problems. That way, both parties are protected, and you can be confident that you know what you are getting, right from the start.

Any changes to the contract once the work has started are documented as change orders and must be signed by both parties. For example, you may want to add items as the work progresses, specific products may be on back-order, or the renovator might run into construction issues that could not be anticipated in advance.

Finally, professional renovators provide a warranty on their work-a minimum of one year. When you work with a reputable, solid company, this warranty has meaning; you can expect courteous after-sales service and follow-up if needed.

The facts are clear. A professional renovator is skilled, experienced and committed to helping you achieve your renovation goals. You can expect to be treated fairly and ethically and in a business-like manner. The choice is easy-trust your home to a professional renovator.

The value of home renovation

Home renovations happen for a number of reasons-adding more living space, replacing an outdated kitchen or bathroom, increasing the energy efficiency of your home or "sprucing up" a tired, older home.

Renovation protects the investment you have already made in your home. It lets you keep the things you cherish about your house rather than having to move. It turns your home into a more enjoyable place. And it may help to increase the marketability of your property on resale.

These are good reasons to consider home renovation. They are also why you need to think carefully about how to spend your renovation dollars. A poorly planned home improvement may not give you the results you want.

Professional renovators offer some solid advice on how to achieve the greatest value for your renovation investment:

Consider what you want to accomplish. Begin by thinking about how you want your home to work for you rather than about particular details of your project. Also, consider how long you intend to stay in your home. Working with a five-year horizon will likely result in a different approach than if you plan to live in your home for the next 20 years or more.

Don't just focus on the upfront cost of your project. Renovation is a further investment in your home. Consider the time, energy and cost required for ongoing maintenance and possible replacement down the road. A well-planned renovation can reduce these future costs.

Don't cut corners in order to save a few dollars, or you may not get the results you want. There may be other ways to stretch a limited budget, or you can scale down your project or complete in phases over an extended period of time. But don't compromise on quality-it is always better to do less and do it well.

Get professional advice. The most important decisions you make about your renovation take place at the planning stage. Whether your project is large or small, professional renovators can help you with great ideas for design and products, and they can identify any problems in your home or specific issues that you may not be aware of.

The quality of your renovation depends on the skill of the people doing the work

Hire professionals to do the work. Ultimately, the quality of your renovation depends on the skill and competence of the people doing the work. Check out renovation contractors until you are confident you have found someone you want to work with. Be prepared to invest time in meetings with contractors and follow up with the references they give you. And while price is important, don't make it the only criteria-consider the overall value that a company will bring to your renovation.

Never let someone work on your home without a written contract, warranty, insurance and workers compensation for employees, or you could be at risk if something goes wrong-out of pocket, left with a mess and, in a worst case scenario, liable for injuries on site.

If you are concerned about the financial return on resale, consider hiring an appraiser to assess your property and the impact of your proposed renovations. According to the Appraisal Institute of Canada, homeowners should not expect a dollar for dollar payback, but home renovation can enhance a property's marketability.

Surveys by the Institute point to the importance of choosing renovations that are appropriate for the market and the neighbourhood, and in doing a quality job.

Enjoy the value of home renovation.
Trust your home to a professional renovator.

Safe at home

Your home is your castle, the place where you feel at ease, comfortable and secure. Home is also where more accidents happen to people than anywhere else, perhaps not surprising given the amount of time most people spend at home. Home renovation is a great opportunity not only to make the changes you want or need in your home, but also to improve its safety.

Building codes and practices have evolved over the years. If you live in an older home built to earlier codes, chances are that there are a number of things you and your renovator can do to make your home a safer place to live.

Not all safety improvements are expensive and time-consuming; many may be modest and simple but can still make a big difference to your peace of mind. A professional renovator can advise you on the improvements that can be made to your home and the best approach. Some measures may already be included in your renovation plans. It may be cost-effective for your renovator to make other improvements at the same time.

Hardwiring your smoke detectors into your electrical system eliminates the risk of batteries running low or being "temporarily" removed. This is a simple measure that can save your family and property in case of fire.

Install a carbon monoxide detector to monitor this colourless, odourless but harmful gas, which is a common by-product of the burning of fossil fuels (e.g. furnace, fireplace, cars) and a risk if equipment is not properly installed, operated and vented. Detectors can be battery-operated, plugged into an electrical outlet or wired directly into the electrical system.

Ground-fault circuit interrupters protect from electrical shock in damp or wet environments. Install these outlets in the bathroom, kitchen and outdoors where exposed to the elements or near swimming pools or hot tubs.

Too few electrical outlets can result in a tangle of wires and extension cords.

People can trip, pull lamps over or pull hot appliances off kitchen counters.

Adding outlets can be relatively easy, depending on the condition of your electrical system.

Make it easy to move safely outdoors in the dark. Install good lighting outside the entrance door, by stairs, along walkways and at other strategic locations such as your garbage and recycling storage area.

Painted exterior stairs and porch floors can be slippery when wet. Adding sand to the paint will give your feet a better grip and prevent falls.

Older interior stairs may be steep or narrow, with undersized steps. Install a handrail on the wall at the proper height to give all family members, young and old, something to hold on to. Your renovator can recommend an installation that can be removed when you need to move furniture.

To prevent slipping and falling on stairs, consider well-installed runners or apply an abrasive, non-skid strip on each step. Don't forget about good lighting in the stairwell so you can see clearly where to put your feet.

Particularly for the little ones in the family, check that railings inside and out are in good shape, with no loose parts and proper spacing between balusters (the upright pieces) to prevent children from falling through or getting stuck.

A grab bar next to the tub or shower is helpful to keep both young and old from sliding and falling. Or, if you are redoing your bathroom and don't want a grab bar now, reinforce the wall for a future installation.

Replace bathroom floor covering with non-slip flooring.

Rapid changes in water pressure and temperature are common in older homes, depending on how, when and where water is used. This not only can be uncomfortable, it can be hazardous. Pressure-balanced valves for the shower and bathtub prevent scalding in the bathroom by automatically adjusting the flow of hot water, if there is a sudden drop in cold water, e.g. when the toilet is flushed. Other anti-scald devices include faucet aerators, inserts and hot water sensors that shut off the water flow at a certain temperature. You may also be able to lower the thermostat setting on your hot water tank.

Older windows may open too wide, posing a danger for younger children. Make them safe by blocking double-hung windows, adding a chain or hinge to swinging windows or placing a screw in the track of sliders to limit how far they can open.

Check all exit doors and windows. Are they easy to get to and open in the event of an emergency? For older children as well as the adults? And have you planned an escape route and discussed it with everyone in the house, just in case?

Also discuss any security concerns with your professional renovator, who can advise you on measures to safeguard against break-ins, from window locks to automated lighting to alarm systems. You want to feel safe and secure in your home.

The facts about smoke and fire

Fire is deadly. When you are asleep fumes can send you deeper into unconsciousness. More people die from breathing smoke than by burns. Smoke alarms are your first line of defense. They provide an early warning in the event of fire and may allow you and your family precious time to reach safety.

Are you at risk?

1. Do you keep a list of emergency phone numbers near the telephone?
2. Do you have a smoke alarm on every level of your home including the basement?
3. Do you check and replace the batteries regularly?
4. Are they working now?
5. Do you have both ionization and photoelectronic type smoke alarms?
6. Have you replaced all smoke alarms that are more than 10 years old? Different smoke alarms for different types of fire.

Not all fires are the same.

Ionization smoke alarms respond first to fast flaming fires
Photoelectronic smoke alarms respond first to slow smoldering fires and are less prone to nuisance alarms in the kitchen area.

For complete protection smoke alarms should be installed in every room and area of your home. Routinely test and clean your alarms to keep them in good working order. Replace batteries regularly and it is recommended to completely replace alarms every 10 years.

Fire Safety Tips

- 1 Plan an escape route
- 2 Practice a home fire drill
- 3 Get out alive

- sleep with your bedroom door closed. A closed door will help slow the spread of fire, smoke and heat.
- If you hear the smoke alarm, roll to the floor and crawl to your door. Stay low where the air is cleaner.
- Touch the door. If the door feels cool, open it just a crack and check for smoke. If there is no smoke leave by your planned escape route. Crawl and keep your head down.
- If the door feels hot do not open it. Use your alternate exit.
- If you can't leave your room, seal the cracks around the doors and vents as best you can. Use a wet towel or clothing if possible. Open a window at both the top and bottom. Stay low and breathe fresh air. Shout for help and signal your location by waving a bright cloth, towel or sheet.
- If your clothes catch on fire, "Stop, Drop and Roll" to put out the flames. Do not run--running will only increase the flames.

The facts about carbon monoxide

Every year thousands of people die from accidental carbon monoxide poisoning in North America. Another 10,000 people are treated or hospitalized annually. Carbon monoxide is often called the silent killer because you can't see it, smell it or taste it. It is the number 1 source of accidental poisoning deaths. Carbon monoxide (CO) is a by-product of incomplete combustion and is produced when flammable fuels such as natural gas, propane, heating oil, kerosene, coal, charcoal, gasoline or wood burn with insufficient air.

Are you at risk?

1. Do you keep a list of emergency phone numbers near the telephone?
2. Do you have your heating system inspected annually?
3. Do you schedule regular maintenance for gas appliances? (water heater, stove, clothes dryer)
4. Do you have your chimney and flue cleaned professionally?
5. If you have an attached garage, is it properly vented?
6. Do you have a carbon monoxide alarm in your home?

What are the symptoms of CO poisoning?

Early warning signs

- headaches
- dizziness
- nausea
- fatigue
- flu-like symptoms

Many people confuse these symptoms with those of the flu or the start of a cold. Because victims of CO poisoning will slip deeper into unconsciousness as their CO condition gets worse, install a carbon monoxide alarm in or near each sleeping area in your home. As the level of CO exposure increases, so do the effects. High exposure levels can cause confusion, convulsions, breathing difficulties, collapse, brain damage and death. Because CO poisoning often causes a victim's blood pressure to rise, abnormally pink or red casts could signal trouble.

Consider the needs of your Home When Renovating

Before making firm renovation plans to put in a new kitchen or add the sunroom you have always wanted, it's a good idea to take a close look at the condition of your home first. It's important to make sure that your home is in good shape—no underlying problems and no reason to expect sudden repairs or replacement in the near future. Knowing that you have taken care of the "basics" means you can go ahead with your renovation with confidence.

A thorough examination of your home will identify work that needs to be done as part of your planned renovation project. Usually, it is more cost effective to do other necessary repairs at the same time. You also want to consider future renovations you might want to undertake. With a clear picture of the condition of your home, you can budget for both the short and the long term.

Here is what you can typically expect to find in an older home.

Wear and tear

Many items that suffer the most from normal wear and tear over the years are not necessarily expensive to re-do, and they make a big difference to the appearance of your home, and your enjoyment of it. Inside, paint and wallpaper lose their lustre, carpeting fades and floor finishing gets worn down. Outside, stairs and trim may need repair and repainting, eaves troughs get rusty, and caulking crumbles and falls out.

Components reach the end of their service life. Many of the products in your home have a defined lifespan. Careful maintenance may extend this somewhat, but sooner or later they need to be replaced. For instance, after 15 to 20 years roof shingles may begin to curl, disintegrate and lose their ability to keep out moisture.

Structural damage

Over time, cracks may appear in the foundation and brick siding, gaps may develop between the foundation and walls, or there may be other evidence of shifting and movement. Mortar in stone or rubble foundations may fall out, siding may work loose, and windowsills may erode. Floors may be warped or sagging, and there may be cracks in the drywall or plaster. As a result, your home may not be as comfortable, energy efficient or healthy as it could be, and if these problems are left unattended, further structural deterioration may occur.

Moisture problems

Moisture can damage your home and your health. Water seepage around plumbing fixtures can destroy surrounding wood. Moisture trapped in the building envelope can cause structural deterioration and create cracks, bulges or stains in walls and ceilings. Condensation on windows can eventually rot out wood frames and sills. Molds may grow in many places, both visible and invisible. And a damp basement may not only cause deterioration in the structure of your home and be a breeding ground for molds, it can also give the whole house a musty, unpleasant smell.

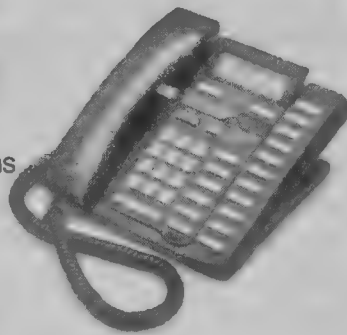

Need to upgrade systems

The electrical system in your home may pre-date today's equipment-intensive lifestyle and may not be adequate, or safe, for your needs. Your plumbing system may not give you enough hot water or steady pressure for your family's showers, laundry and car washing. An older heating system may not deliver comfortable heat. You may also want new technologies to bring your home up to today's standard of performance and comfort—e.g. in ventilation, electrostatic furnace filters, water purification, alarm systems and computer wiring.

Francis Thomas Contracting

Just about any type of construction begins with a hole in the ground. Whether you are putting in a foundation for a cottage or home, a pad for a garage, a new driveway and culvert, whatever is in your construction plans, you will likely be moving earth. Where there is dirt to be moved, contractors throughout the highlands turn to the experience and knowledge of Francis Thomas Contracting of Carnarvon. Francis Thomas Contracting has been helping local builders get started for over 68 years. Specializing in total site preparation, including the excavation for foundations, constructing cottage roads and installation of septic systems, they have the right equipment and experienced personnel to get the work done.

At Francis Thomas Contracting, they specialize in the installation of septic systems and tile beds including barge septs. They are familiar with the health unit regulations and will work with the home owner, contractor and health inspector to ensure the job is done correctly and meets government specifications.

Francis Thomas Contracting now has two septic pumping trucks to service your septic or holding tanks in the Carnarvon and Minden areas.

Francis Thomas Contracting also has a ready supply of all types of aggregates, including topsoil and can deliver it to the job site when it is needed and ensure it is applied properly.

At this time of the year the staff at Francis Thomas Contracting is gearing up for winter. They provide snow clearing services for private driveways and commercial lots and also have a sanding service that can ensure your parking area is safe and clear this winter.

So, whether you need winter maintenance to keep your driveway open and safe or are planning a project for next spring's building season, now is the time to contact Francis Thomas Contracting in Carnarvon. Call today and put 68 years of contracting experience to work for you. Call Keith Thomas at 705-489-2711.

Need to upgrade the energy efficiency

Improving the energy efficiency of your home can save you money and increase your living comfort-fewer drafts, fewer cold and hot spots, less fluctuation in temperature. From caulking to added insulation to better windows, there are many ways to upgrade the energy performance of an older home.

A good first step is to conduct your own inspection. Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation has a range of information, including a checklist, to assist homeowners in this task. Go online at HYPERLINK http://www.cmhc-schl.gc.ca or call 1-800-668-2642. Fees may apply.

When you discuss your renovation plans with a professional renovator, you can expect your project to be assessed in detail-what's involved, the impact on the whole house and the need to upgrade systems or the structure. A professional renovator will usually also give you advice on other work that might be needed. They may recommend the services of an EnerGuide advisor to assess the energy performance of your home and opportunities for upgrading. In the event of severe air quality and moisture problems, they may suggest you hire an indoor air quality evaluator.

If you want a thorough and formal assessment of your entire home, from top to bottom, you can hire a professional home inspector. Make sure it's someone who is trained, certified and insured, and ask for a written report.

Dyna-Con Explosives Technologies

The earth moved, literally, when a Haliburton company set off the biggest blast ever heard in the history of Ontario roadbuilding. Sixty thousand cubic meters of granite in the Parry Sound area was blasted to kingdom come (and then later hauled away by trucks) in one single, explosive moment. It took Dyna-Con Explosive Technologies Inc. approximately three weeks to drill the necessary holes and four days to fill them with ammonium nitrate but only two seconds to blow everything up.

Three months after that, trucks were finishing up the job of hauling the rock away, but that wasn't Dyna-Con's job.

"We just blast it and walk away," said Ryan Sampson, who does cost analysis and special projects for the company.

The big blast they're so excited about is a feather in Dyna-Con's hard hat. The Haliburton company (located on County Rd. 1 a few minutes outside the village) was awarded the largest road work contract for drilling and blasting ever tendered in the province of Ontario, involving 1.5 million cubic meters of good old-fashioned Canadian Shield. The job was started in November 1999 and just recently completed. The major single blast that company officials claim is the largest blast in Ontario history was part of that tender. The work was done on Hwy. 69 just 5 km south of Parry Sound - what is commonly known as one of cottage country's most dangerous highways is being widened to four lanes. No job is too big or too small," Pat Casey said. He figures the smallest job he's ever done is moving a boulder - that cost $500. Blowing up granite on Hwy. 69 cost $5.1-million.

Casey said the company has been in business for seven years. "We've managed to double our size every year in that time."

Sampson added, "When Dyna-Con started it was just Pat in a pick-up truck and now we're the fourth major player in the explosives business in Canada... Pat is very aggressive, not afraid to take calculated risks. When Pat was going for that job on Hwy. 69 he was up against two major players in the industry. He surprised everyone by getting the job."

The company started in Haliburton (Casey was born here - his father, Tim Casey is the company's operations manager and his uncle, Dennis, is the controller) but moved to the Parry Sound area because much of the work was there. Just recently the company has moved back to Haliburton, setting up an office using the old rec hall from Birch Point Lodge. In the time the company moved and came back, it grew considerably - while the Hwy. 69 job was at its peak there were 40 employees working for Dyna-Con.

Sampson loves being involved in blowing things up for Dyna-Con. "It's exciting," he admitted. "You feel like a little kid, rushing back to see if it blew up OK." Neither he nor Casey grew up wanting to blow things up, but Casey always liked a challenge.

"I've always got a kick out of doing stuff nobody else is doing."

No doubt about it, he blows up things real good.

Renovating? ...think "House as a System"

A house is more than just four walls and a roof. It's a complex system of different components that interact and determine the performance of the home and the health, safety and comfort of the people living in it.

The professional renovation industry has long recognized the importance of "the house as a system" concept-various parts of a house working together to create a comfortable, durable and efficient building. Changes to one part affect the others and, hence, the entire house. Specifically, the system involves:

- the "building envelope", i.e. the separation between the inside of your home and the outdoors-foundation, walls, roof, windows and doors
- the mechanical equipment-heating, cooling and ventilation
- other factors such as structure, plumbing, landscaping and occupant lifestyle

Together, these components determine how your home will perform-the protection it offers from the external environment, the quality of your living environment, the durability of the building, how you use the spaces in your home, and the ongoing operating costs.

Why is it important to consider the house as a system?

Construction technology and building products have changed a lot since the mid-1970s, when tighter construction and greater use of insulation, air/vapour barriers, and energy-efficient windows became common in new home construction and renovation.

Along with improvements in construction technology, the industry has gained a better understanding of air, heat and moisture movement and the need to manage the indoor environment in a deliberate and systematic way. Today, we recognize the link between the quality of the indoor air and personal health, underscoring the "house as a system" concept.

Renovation provides an opportunity to improve the performance of your home, merging old and new technologies to give you a better living environment. A professional renovator will carefully consider your project's impact on your home as a whole and will advise you on the best "house as a system" approach for you. Here are a few common examples:

Energy upgrades-new windows and doors, more insulation in walls and attic, installation of air/vapour barriers-will improve the energy performance and comfort of your home. As your home gets "tighter", humid, stale air from inside may have a harder time escaping to the outside unless adequate ventilation is provided. If not, you may end up with stuffy, unpleasant air, condensation on windows and sills, mold growth that can affect your health and, over time, damage to your home.

Solutions can be as simple as adding a timer to the bathroom exhaust fan, installing a dehumidistat or putting an extra fan in the laundry room. In most cases, upgraded older homes still let in an adequate amount of accidental "new" air, but care is needed to ensure that the extra fans do not cause backdrafting of combustion appliances such as fuel-fired furnaces, water heaters or fireplaces. Your renovator might suggest a whole house ventilation system, which will provide a steady flow of fresh air. New systems suitable for renovations have recently come on the market.

Indoor air quality problems may already exist in your home because of a damp basement or inadequate ventilation. If so, a professional renovator can offer solutions to improve the healthiness of your home.

Air flow and moisture problems can also occur with a new addition to an older home if ventilation has not been taken into consideration. Furthermore, you need to determine how to heat the new space: expand the existing system, augment with a different system or replace it? A professional renovator might suggest a zoned system that allows you to control the heat in individual areas, or zones, of your home.

Proper drainage is important to keep outside moisture away from your home. Some renovations (e.g. additions, decks and landscaping) can change the drainage patterns on your property. Experienced renovators will assess the affect of your renovation and recommend measures to control water run-off and drainage.

When you are making substantial changes to your existing space (taking down or building new walls, moving living and working spaces around), it may be necessary to readjust the heating, cooling and ventilation of the new layout.

Large new windows or sunrooms will open up your home and bring in lots of light. They can also lead to overheating, unless you take the proper approach, such as special coating on windows, blinds or drapes on the inside, or awnings, shutters or strategic planting of shade trees outside. A renovator may also recommend separate ventilation in sunrooms.

Trust your home to a professional renovator.

INNOVATION WAS NEVER SO ELEGANT.

State of the art wood-burners that stand alone, or fit right in.

The 2200 stove and insert are a hearth-warming combination of elegance and engineering; and offer a true Bay Style viewing area.

Pedestals, leg kits, gold accented doors, and functional trivet cooking surfaces are some of the styling options on the 2200 stove.

The 2200 insert features designer faceplates in 3 sizes, gold accents and an optional gold door—adding elegance to any room.

440 THANK YOU

AS WE TRAVELLED ON HOLI-DAYS, camping, flying etc., many people we met would ask, "Why do you choose to live in a small town?"
I was born at West Guilford, Lorraine in Toronto. We chose Haliburton in 1964 to go into business mainly because we loved this area and the people that lived here. When Lorraine passed away last week, I was proven right, that it is the only place to live, by the many cards and flowers that were sent in her memory - Thank You.
I would like to thank each and every person that visited Lorraine in the hospital or attended her passing at the Haliburton Community Funeral Home.
For the past 3 years she had gone through a terrible ordeal. She never complained about her condition and she faced her burden like a real "trooper".

I would like to thank from the bottom of my heart, the Doctors and many Nurses from Princess Margaret and Haliburton Hospital. The Haliburton
Ambulance drivers who were so kind to her and Dr. Roland Bruce for the great care and concern that you gave her.

I would especially like to thank the Ha-liburton Highland Twirlers Square Dance Club for their support, as Lorraine loved to square dance. You guys and gals are the "Salt of the Earth" -
Thank You.

Last but not least, thank you to Father
Mark J. Curtis "Canada's Singing priest" for your kind offer to sing for Lorraine at the chapel. Your songs will be long remembered by everyone who attended her service on Saturday.

To anyone that we have missed, please accept our gratitude for your kindness and support.
Love and heartfelt thanks to everyone. Marvin Varty and Family.

ance

450 IN MEMORIAM

BOUGHNER, ROY H. - Died August
26/00.

Days of sadness still come o'er us,
Tears in silence often flow,
For memory keeps you ever near us
Though you died two years ago.
Lovingly remembered. Wife Marilyn,
Children Sharon, Roy, Rod and
Rick and their family.

Glen Scheffee

In loving memory of a dear son, brother and uncle who passed away August 25, 2001.

When family ties are broken
And loved ones have to pass
It leaves a wound that never heals
And a broken heart.

Your end was very sudden
It made us cry and cry
But the saddest part of all was
We never said good-bye.

We love you and will always miss you so much,
Love, Mom, Dad, Bill, Mike, Tony &
families.

450 IN MEMORIAM

SCHOFFEE, GLEN - In loving memory of our dear friend Glen Scheffee who passed away suddenly on August 25, 2001.

He had a unique way about him, that warmed our hearts, and the many special qualities that made him the wonderful person he was. Our own precious memories are a comfort to us now, and throughout the days to come. We miss you - Cleve, Beverley, Carley and Terra Shaw.

TRAVISS, MARIE - In loving memory of a dear wife, mother and grandmother who passed away August 26, 1990.

We cannot lose the ones we love
For even when they're gone,
We feel their gentle presence
In the hush of every dawn.

We see them in the sunlight
That Makes the day so bright,
In the flowers of the spring time
And in the stars of night.

The heart is like a treasure chest,
That's filled with souvenirs.
It's there we keep the memories
We gather through the years.

We cannot lose the ones we love,
For they will always stay.
In all that's bright and beautiful
Around us every day.

Always remembered and sadly missed by Frank, Keith and Jackie,
Karen and Paul, Jake, Jenny, Traviss and Samantha.
